30% off Special Edition Holiday Kollars Nov-Dec 2007

In 1975, my husband was stationed at a radar site 40 miles north of the Arctic Circle. To help with separation anxieties, we told our children their Daddy would be living near the North Pole and Santa Claus. Sean became somewhat of a celebrity with his pre-school classmates when he told them his Daddy was living near Santa!

Irene Lockett, President

Sean came inside to talk to his Daddy, who was calling from far, far away.

North Pole, Alaska

North Pole, Alaska is near the city of Fairbanks. It's about 1,700 miles south of the Earth's geographic North Pole. Street names such as Santa Claus Lane, Snowman Lane, and Kris Kringle Drive are lined with street lights that look like candy canes. Firetrucks and ambulances are all red; the police cars are all green. The residents say it's Merry Christmas all year long!

Many people mail their holiday cards to North Pole to be canceled with the uniquely designed postal mark -- a half circle drawing of Santa Claus. Children send letters to Santa, and dozens of volunteers in North Pole and Fairbanks send out preprinted replies. Last year there were 120,000 letters from 26 countries, not counting the letters without return addresses!
